Replacement covers for waterproof snap frames

When waterproof snap frames require replacement covers it is important to select the correct size.

- If you see a black rubber strip all around the inside of the snap frame you will need one of these oversize poster protectors.

These PET covers are larger than corresponding regular snap frame covers and will fit our waterproof snap frames and waterbase pavement signs as specified below. An oversize snap frame cover is required to span the rubber gasket which surrounds the poster aperture in a waterproof snap frame in order to achieve a good seal.

When purchasing to fit other manufacturers' snap frames please check measurements carefully as we cannot advise on compatibility with other makes, nor is it economical to accept returns for wrongly ordered poster covers. Please refer to the exact dimensions of the covers in mm stated in the product description grid next to the prices.

More Information

Mistakes can be expensive.

Please carefully check the dimensions of the poster cover you are replacing before ordering!

There are many manufacturers of snap frames but only a few offer snap frames which can be correctly described as waterproof. These incorporate a water-proof seal or gasket within the frame surrounding the recess where the poster sits. The cover sheet has to seat properly onto this gasket or else water will enter the frame causing damage to paper posters.

In some models the cover merely extends over the full width of the gasket. This is a minimum requirement to achieve the desired effect. In other models the cover extends some way beyond the gasket into the 'gutter' around the frame. This is a common (but not universal) situation with waterbase signs advertised as 'waterproof' but it can also apply to some makes of wall-mounted waterproof snap frames.

So please do not rely on our generalised product descriptions. Work from the dimensions stated above! If you are not confident measuring accurate sizes in mm please seek assistance from someone who can help you.

If you try to guess the size you may well be making an expensive mistake.

We cannot offer refunds for wrongly ordered snap frame covers.

We have to rely on you checking carefully before ordering.
