Hand sanitiser dispenser with table stand

The hand sanitiser dispenser is mounted on a short tabletop stand made of metal for stability. Hand gel is dispensed by depressing the lever, either by hand or by using the sleeve or elbow if preferred. The well-designed unit is perfect for standing on a counter, bar or reception desk.

The lever dispenser has a number of practical features:

- Table standing dispenser comes with a 1 litre bottle to be filled with alcohol gel or other sanitiser of your choice.
- Bottle is easily removed for filling after pressing down on the safety catch, designed to deter unauthorised access.
- The manual pump has a downward pointing spout to help avoid spills and misfiring onto clothes.
- A pull-out drip tray catches drips (these are more likely to occur when using liquid alcohol as opposed to gel). The drip catcher can be emptied and washed, then clipped back into position.

Tabletop stand is well designed

The table stand is easy to assemble – simply join the leg to the base, engage the dispenser unit and tighten two screws.

Generally the dispenser is left free-standing and can be moved around if required. In this case use the four stick-on bumper feet to protect the counter-top or desk. Alternatively the metal base can be stuck down to the tabletop with two strips of double-sided tape. This offers increased security when demanded by the location. For example on the counter of a fast food outlet or busy school servery it may be prudent to fix the unit in position using the supplied double-stick tape..

Assembly and Installation	Easy to set up and fill with gel The unit comes with instructions. Assembly is easy and the pump bottle can be filled by unscrewing the top. We suggest use of a funnel or jug with a pouring spout rather than direct from a 5 litre jerry can.
