Can lockable poster cases suffer from Condensation?

For the best long-term outdoor results, ask your print partners to use 180-micron Polyprop waterproof paper and waterproof inks.

Condensation on the inside of the door can occur under certain atmospheric conditions. It is the same situation as inside a car windscreen where condensation can occur without implying that rain has actually entered.

Typically on a cold night after a humid day the water vapour in the air can condense on any cold surface (such as the glazed door or car windscreen) and this is unavoidable. In most situations, any misting clears of its own accord as the glass (or clear plastic) warms up again.
